

Questions for Readers

Here are some questions by the author to help the readers delve into his latest novel.

- Does the opening of the book capture your imagination? Does it make you want to read further?
 - Are the characters well drawn – that is, interesting and believable? Could you easily tell them apart?
 - Are the settings well described? Do you have a strong sense of being there?
 - Does the plot hold your interest? Do you want to press on reading in order to solve the mystery for yourself?
 - Are the relationships between the major characters convincing and interesting? Are there sub-plots that give the characters depth?
-
- Is the central issue in the story well resolved – that is, both believable and satisfying? Did you see it coming, or was it a surprise?
 - Would you read another novel by this author? Why or why not?